Free non-disclosure agreement: drafting notes

This is a straightforward non-disclosure agreement (NDA). This document is easy to adapt, although it does not include all the clauses in some of our other NDAs. The NDA is unilateral, in that it protects the information of only one of the parties.

A key issue to be addressed when adapting this NDA is the definition of confidential information. A narrow definition of confidential information may be easier to agree, but a broader definition can offer greater protection - for example, in relation to confidential information the disclosure of which was not foreseen by the parties when the NDA was agreed.

As with all of our free documents, this NDA contains a credit for Docular which you should (under our licensing rules) retain in your finished document.

AGREEMENT

Clause 1: Definitions

Clause 1.1

- The bank and public holidays of which jurisdiction should be excluded from the definition of "Business Day"?

Definition of Disclosor Confidential Information

- Information disclosed during which of these periods is or might be treated as confidential for the purposes of this document?
- Will the terms of this document be confidential?

Definition of Effective Date

- When will the contract come into force?

Definition of Term

- Define "Term", the period during which the contract will subsist.

Clause 2: Credit

Clause: Free documents licensing warning

Optional element. Although you need to retain the credit, you should remove the inline copyright warning from this document before use.

Clause 3: Term

Clause 3.2

- Is the term of the contract indefinite, or will it come to an end upon some agreed date, or upon the occurrence of a defined event?
- Upon what date will the contract terminate?
- Upon the occurrence of what event will the contract terminate?

Clause 4: Consideration

Should the document include a provision specifying the consideration provided by the first party to the second party?

In English law, a contract must be supported by consideration - i.e. some kind of quid pro quo. The consideration may be nominal. This sort of provision may be required if it is unclear what benefit the second party is getting from the contract. An alternative approach in these circumstances is to execute the document as a deed.

Clause 4.1

- Will monetary consideration be provided to the second party, or some other form of consideration?
- What amount will be paid by the first party to the second party by way of consideration? The amount may be a nominal amount.
- Specify the consideration provided by the first party to the second party.

Clause 5: Recipient confidentiality obligations

Clause 5.1

- In the event of a disclosure of confidential information made by the Recipient with the prior written consent of the Disclosor, should the Recipient be bound to place confidentiality obligations upon the recipient of the information?
- Will the Disclosor have to give its written approval to the specific conditions under which confidential information is disclosed by the Recipient to a third party, or is it sufficient that such disclosures are made under conditions of confidentiality no less onerous than those set out in this document?
- Should the Recipient be required to act in good faith in relation to confidential information?
- Should the Recipient be placed under an obligation to only use the information disclosed for a defined purpose?

Clause 5.2

Optional element.

- To whom may the Recipient disclose the confidential information?
- Should disclosures made under this provision be prohibited unless there is a "need to know"?

Clause 5.3

- State here the circumstances in which the confidentiality obligations will not apply.
- Should the Recipient be free to disclose all information received from third parties in circumstances where the Recipient has no reason to believe that there has been a breach of a confidentiality obligation?
- Should the Recipient be free to disclose information that has been independently developed? The relevance of this potential exception may depend upon the nature of the information being disclosed.

Clause 5.5

Optional element. Should the Recipient be prohibited from making any further use of confidential information following termination?

Clause 5.6

Optional element. Should the document include an express requirement that the Recipient delete confidential information upon termination?

Clause 5.7

- Will the confidentiality obligations continue indefinitely, or will they come to an end at some point following termination of the contract?
- For what period following termination will the confidentiality obligations continue?

Clause 6: Termination

Clause 6.1

- Will notice of termination be immediately effective, or only effective after the expiry of a defined notice period?
- What notice period will apply?

Clause 8: Equitable relief

Optional element.

Clause 9: General

Clause 9.1

Optional element.

Clause 9.2

Optional element.

Clause 9.3

Optional element.

This is intended to prevent, for example, one party wrongfully claiming that a term of the contract was changed in a telephone call.

Clause 9.4

Optional element.

Clause 9.5

Optional element.

This provision is designed to exclude any rights a third party may have under the Contracts (Rights of Third Parties) Act 1999.

- Contracts (Rights of Third Parties) Act 1999 - <https://www.legislation.gov.uk/ukpga/1999/31>

Clause 9.7

Optional element.

Clause 9.8

This template has been drafted to work in the English law context. If you plan to change the governing law, you should have the document reviewed by someone with expertise in the law of the relevant jurisdiction.

- Which law will govern the document?

Clause 9.9

Optional element.

As a practical matter, it makes sense for the courts with expertise in the relevant law to have the right to adjudicate disputes. Where one of the parties is outside England (or at least the UK), you may want to grant the courts of their home jurisdiction the right to adjudicate disputes, as this could ease enforcement in some circumstances.

- The courts of which jurisdiction will have the exclusive right to adjudicate disputes relating to the document (subject to applicable law)?
